Triumph adopted unitary construction for the 350cc 3TA / Twenty One in 1957 and a year later for the 500cc 5TA / Speed Twin. The unusual 'Bath Tub' bodywork that clothed both models was quite controversial at the time but clearly an early attempt at some form of stream lining as well as extra water protection for what was essentially commuter transport.

Triumph 5TA Speed Twin | Anthony Godin

The Speed Twin is the legendary 20th century Triumph name that changed the face of motorcycling with its world-class performance and handling, setting the benchmark for how a motorcycle should feel and ride.

1961 Triumph 500 Speed Twin 5TA - Certainly like my Sunbeam 57, this Triumph Speed Twin 1961 500cc is very much a gentlemans motorcycle, having tremendous style and smooth modern lines but is sadly from an era where the motor car really started to significantly erode motorcycle sales.

Triumph Speed Twin 5ta Motorcycle

Triumph's Edward Turner initiated the design theme of the bathtub rear metal enclosure and the deeply valanced front fender. First seen early in 1957 on the 350cc 3TA "Twenty One," the conservative styling was then introduced for the 1959 model year on the 500cc 5TA "Speed Twin." It didn't go over very well here in the U.S.

Triumph Speed Twin - Wikipedia

If a bike's impact on the industry and longevity in production are any measure of success, there are few designs that come close to the 500cc Triumph Speed Twin, the first commercially successful parallel-twin cylinder motorcycle. Almost every major motorcycle manufacturer of its time copied or ...

Buying guide: Triumph 5TA Speed Twin - Classic Bike Guide

The Speed Twin 5T is a motorcycle that was made by Triumph at their Coventry, and later Meriden factories. Edward Turner, Triumph's Chief Designer and Managing Director, launched the Triumph Speed Twin at the 1937 National Motorcycle Show. It was a 500 cc OHV vertical twin in a lightweight frame and the first truly successful British parallel twin, setting the standard for many twins to follow.
