What if Everybody Did That? : Teaching Social Responsibility . While working with younger children, I have noticed that rules cannot simply be stated. Children are curious and like to question boundaries. They want a reason for why a rule has been made! That being said, I think it's important to show your students what our world, i.e. classroom ...

The title alone is intriguing! What a wonderful book to use with your students as a springboard for discussing and creating your class rules. Written by a Colorado second grade teacher, What If Everybody Did That is a great mentor text that can inspire children to think creatively about all kinds of "what if" situations, not just school specific.
